

‘A Walk in the Park’ - outside view

'A Walk in the Park' - installation view

'A Walk in the Park' - installation view

'Untitled (Possibilities)', 2020
rag rugs, variable dimensions

'Seam Piece (Wild One)', 2020
textile, variable dimensions

Anna Holtz: 'El Prosecco', 2020
wire, plastic, string, latex, 43,5x23x45 cm

'Seam Piece (Concession)', 2020
textile, variable dimensions

Anna Holtz: 'Blumen' (detail), 2020
dried flowers, variable dimensions

Anna Holtz . Dario Wokurka

A Walk in the Park

They used to be called delinquents.
All the while everyone else around them began unearthing themselves. Then or now?

When they were looking for nothing,
what they found was time.

Time as a substance, in which to lay low or hang out high, or else, move around meeting in the middle.

Structures, both rigid and soft, support and embrace,
almost dancing in some macabre ways.

Thoughts of liberation float through ethereal essences.

What does freedom mean to you?

Tread lightly where you stand.

14:00-16:00

Tuesday, October 20th, 2020, Lainzer Tiergarten, Vienna